

Terms of use for the ultimate guide to Tel Aviv

The terms of use of this site are written in the masculine form, but the contents of this website refer to both men and women

Prelude

- 1. The "The Complete Guide to Tel Aviv" (also "the Guide") is a guide to the city of Tel Aviv written by Sahar Karat and Nofar Ronen and you are invited to take part in it subject to your agreement to the terms of use which will be detailed below.
- 2. In addition to the use of this guide for all its contents and services, downloads of files, media such as images and videos and the various content offered to the user community may change from time to time or depending on the type of content.
- 3. The management of the guide reserves the right to update the terms of use presented below from time to time without notice or special mention on the various channels of the site.

Intellectual Property

- 4. The guide, as well as all information in it including images, texts, maps and the interactive guide, as well as any other material found in the guide belong entirely to Sahar Karat and Nofar Ronen and constitute their exclusive intellectual property and may not be used without prior written permission from them.
You may not distribute, copy, reproduce, publish, copy or process code, graphics, videos, trademarks or any other media or content without having prior written permission.

Contents of the guide

- 5. Links to external sites do not constitute a guarantee that the sites are safe, high quality or reliable and those visits are at your own discretion and are the exclusive responsibility of the user.
- 6. The content offered on the Site is solely owned by the "Complete Guide to Tel Aviv" and may not be used for purposes contrary to these Regulations (see Intellectual Property), unless otherwise noted or in cases where it is stated that copyrights belong to an external entity. In these cases, you must check the terms of use of the attached link and follow the instructions specified on the external site to which the content belongs.
- 7. The guide's authors are not responsible for the standard of service, its quality or the conditions of any of the recommended places mentioned in the guide. All responsibility rests with the Service Provider and/or the Product.